Medicare Payment Cut for Physicians Pushed to 2012

It is official. President Barack Obama has signed the Medicare and Medicaid Extenders Act of 2010 that delays for one year a 25% reduction in Medicare payments to physicians. The new legislation will stabilize Medicare physician payments at current rates for 12 months, through the end of 2011. A summary of the bill can be obtained on the MSD website. The AMA will be working closely with Congressional leadership in the new year to develop a long-term solution to the perennial Medicare reimbursement problem for seniors and their physicians.
